

Do Pillows Need a Pillowcase?

— PUBLISHED APR 27, 2024

Yes, as a rule. Put on a pillowcase just like put on a duvet cover. To protect your pillow's materials, you should place it in a pillowcase, it also protects your pillow from liquids and allergens.

The pillowcase serves the same purpose as duvet covers, only it does it for the pillow. As an added bonus, it prevents you from lying directly on the pillow stuffing, which might trigger allergies in certain people. As a result, they contribute to making you more comfortable while you sleep.

Pillowcases protect your pillow from spills, stains and other damages. The right size pillow will allow you to enjoy your pillow fully. Too small a pillowcase can cause it to become flattened and damage the pillow. If the pillow doesn't have enough room to expand, it can't be fluffed to the right height. A good pillowcase will also be breathable and fit your pillow perfectly, allowing you to sleep well without worrying about the pillowcase falling off or bunching up.

Pillows can be measured in inches or centimeters. If you are unsure about the size of your pillowcase, measure its width and length first before you buy new ones. Then choose the standard pillowcase size or queen pillowcase size according to the pillow size.

For the accurate results, use a tape measure that is firm (e.g., a carpenter's) rather than flexible (e.g., a tailor's) to measure the pillow. Do not measure the pillow diagonally. Do not measure the pillow across the center. Keep in mind that when ordering, you will need to round up or round down to the nearest ½ inch.

Queen pillowcase size are slightly longer than a standard pillowcase size, with a typical measurement of 20"x30", while standard pillowcase size dimensions is 20"x26".

Oversized standard pillowcases measuring 20 x 36 inches, A king-size pillowcase is usually used on a California king or king mattress. Most people prefer to use two of these cases on a matching-sized bed.

You can have lots of small pillows on a large bed, or you can choose to have fewer. If you prefer a large pillow on a small mattress, then that is also possible. Although smaller pillows take up less room, however, they are not the best option if you are a restless sleeper. Tossing and turning all night will leave you rolling off the edge of a small pillow. In these situations, a king or queen-sized pillow will work better for you.

While aspects such as the appearance of your pillowcases can be important, the most important aspect is the size of the pillowcase because the pillowcase needs to match the pillow in question. Anyway, the size and type of pillow that will give you the best sleep will depend on your personal preference.
