For some time now, we've seen the internet become the catalyst for many incredible changes in the entertainment industry. The pandemic made all services even more digitised for our comfort. We got used to the fact, that virtually everything is now online. It's not that much different with sex. The world has changed a lot even in this area. Find out more about how the digital revolution has influenced sex work in the last few years.

People searching for arousal are not using the tube sites only, there's a whole variety of solutions allowing to meet everyone's needs. We all started craving for more quality contact with another human, and the Internet, as always, has found ways to deliver it to them.

During the last few years especially the subscription-based sites allowing performers to share content have been emerging rapidly. It is much easier to feel connected to the performer, when you can support them directly, view exclusive content and make special requests that end up as content available only for you to enjoy. Many platforms have enabled users to follow their favourite influencers, or even helped some of the lesser known to become one. Platforms like EscortFans.com have made their way to the market, specifically designed to be sex worker-friendly and have quite literally revolutionised the sex work industry and forever redefined what sex work means in the digital age. What was once an industry dependent on tradition and viva voce has now become one of the easiest ways for sex workers to become globally-recognised adult content creators – and all at the click of

It has never been easier for any kind of a sex worker including escorts, webcam girls, porn stars, dominatrixes and erotic massagists or any other adult model to gain huge popularity and start capitalising on this new fan-based subscription platform craze. EscortFans.com alone has already paved the way for the incredible success stories including Claudia AX and Elak Baby to name just a few.

Before the revolution, the life of a typical sex worker would include traveling to attend several appointments a week for months on end to make enough money to pay the bills but since the platform's birth in 2020, not only do sex workers no longer need to see their clients physically, but they can make adult content for hundreds if not thousands of fans simultaneously and make more money than ever from the comfort of their own homes.

Creating content on sites like these allows sex workers to build up a huge network of clients and a global following just by starring in their own photo and video productions. Features like videos, photos, private messages, and other types of online content provide an exciting array of opportunities that traditional escorting could never keep up with. Now sex workers have the freedom and autonomy to choose how and when they want to work, by doing something simple like creating a social media profile and a fan page.

The market is saturated with erotic content and even more ways for people to find adult entertainment than ever before, without ever having to leave their homes. The pandemic really helped to shift the scales in favour of digital media, and it is better for everyone.

Created in 2020, EscortFans.com is a fan-based subscription social network platform which is redefining the online sex worker's market. Over the past two years it has been trailblazing the adult content industry, taking the niche of sex work (porn stars, companions, camgirls, dominatrix, strippers, adult entertainers) and turning it into a modern adult social network.

It gives real sex workers a chance to benefit from the digital sex work market without the discrimination and stigma they would normally face when trying to break into online stardom. The platform is focused on celebrating its creators by building an open, engaging, and safe environment for sex workers to earn money and offers a variety of tools and support every step of the way.
