Galaxy Buds Live are Samsung Electronics' latest open-type earbuds with a one-of-a-kind aesthetic, leading audio quality bolstered by AKG's sound expertise and Active Noise Cancellation for a truly immersive earbud experience. What's more, Galaxy Buds Live feature a revolutionary ergonomic, tip-less design that conforms to the shape of your ear for all-day comfort.

But just how effectively does this convention-defying design hold up when used for some of the most dynamic and movement-heavy activities out there? Samsung Newsroom handed over pairs of Galaxy Buds Live to several movement experts - to really put them to the test.

B-boy dance, or breakdancing, is one of the most athletic forms of dance out there, often featuring gravity-defying stunts that see dancers executing near-acrobatic moves on the dancefloor.

Given the style's powerful and demanding nature, B-boying is a natural first choice for ascertaining whether or not the Galaxy Buds Live can maintain their hold. Take a look at the video below to find out whether or not Galaxy Buds Live passed the first round of the Galaxy Buds Live challenge.

Stay tuned to Samsung Global Newsroom for the next installment in the Galaxy Buds Live challenge series.
